Dear Educator,

The school year is quickly winding down for most teachers, and as you try to make that final push before exams the last thing on your mind is professional development. But while you are relaxing over the summer, PBS TeacherLine might be the perfect thing to give you a refreshing spark for next year. These high-quality courses are run completely online over a six week period of time. You will have weekly assignments as you communicate with educators from across the state. Graduate credit is also an option, and with a starting price of $199 for a 30 hour course, it is a low cost for a big impact in your classroom. So while you are sitting in your backyard or lounging by the pool, you can log in and work on bringing something new to your classroom come September.
